Philippian Studies: Lessons in Faith and Love from St. Paul's Epistle to the Philippians H. C. G. Moule

“The main object of this book is devotional. The Epistle to the Philippians is divided into sections, a short historical introduction is attached to each section, a revised translation with an explanatory paraphrase is given, and this is followed by an exposition of the section. Dr. Moule, of course, writes as an Evangelical Churchman; but the spiritual force and insight of his work will be helpful to many who on some matters cannot agree with him. And, indeed, it is seldom that such disagreement will be called out by the book before us.” -Church Quarterly Review, Volume 45, 1898

“As the Scriptures are intended not merely to make wise, but ‘to make wise unto salvation,’ exegesis has not done its part by a Biblical book until it issues into that culminating exercise of exposition which we call ‘the application.’ This delightful book, the ‘whole aim,’ of which, we are told in the Preface, ‘is toward edification,’ is till, properly speaking, exegetical, and may be considered as the completion of its author’s Commentary of the Philippians, published in ‘The Cambridge Greek Testament.’ Such a completion of the more intellectualistically conceived volume was to be expected of Principal Moule, whose practical and devotional writings have brought courage and comfort to thousands. That it should be markedly successful was also certain beforehand. It is, in fact, a model practical commentary on a portion of Scripture, scholarly and precise in its reading of the Word on the one hand, and letting its plummet down into the very depths of its spiritual message on the other. Here philological scholarship, theological knowledge, Christian sentiment, a devout spirit and a poetic temperament combine to press home the lessons of that Word which, however varied in character in accordance with changes in subordinate author and occasion, is everywhere, and is everywhere recognized by this expositor to be, the Word of God, quick and powerful, and able to make wise unto salvation.” -The Presbyterian and Reformed Review, Volume 10, 1899
