Be Heard the First Time: The Woman's Guide to Powerful Speaking (Capital Business) Susan Miller

Dr. Susan Miller's passion is to empower women with effective compelling communication skills so they can articulate and achieve their goals, communicate their needs, and master the art of "being heard" where it counts. Be Heard the First Time is an operator's manual for oral communication and shares the seven key skills of all competent speakers, plus Dr. Miller's proven strategies for breath and pitch control. For beginners, she shows how to focus on posture, presence, comfort level, and the message itself. For the more skilled speaker, Dr. Miller provides effective strategies for combating dry mouth, retrieving words, and answering aggressive questioning when faced with a high-level public meeting or press conference. Be Heard the First Time promises to help reticent women walk, stand, or sit powerfully, even if you feel insecure; like the sound of your voice; breathe deeply and slowly when you are anxious; say the last word of a sentence without trailing off; express your opinions, desires, and experiences clearly; vary the loudness, pitch, and duration of your voice when speaking; entertain others with stories, presentations, and tall tales; finish your statement without interruption; interview, clarify, object, debate, and negotiate powerfully; and respond assertively to criticism. Now the soft-spoken patent attorney, for example—when promoted to the CEO position—can quickly learn how to make a confident and visible entry to a conference or reception room, and how to speak quite differently than she did before her promotion. And, for those aiming for promotion, this book reveals how to "be heard the first time" so you can achieve your goals.

Local voice and communication consultant Susan D. Miller wants you to speak with authority....Breathe deeply, don't trail off, express yourself clearly, be assertive when criticized....It's not just about your voice, Miller says. It's about your appearance, your manner, and your way of dealing with feeling less than confident.

Washington Business Journal, Washington Business Journal, 2006/03/10

"When women are promoted or move up in power, too often they find they aren't taken seriously when they speak, author Susan Miller says. Why? Maybe they don't know how to enter a conference room confidently. Or they might be too soft-spoken. The answer, Miller says, isn't speaking louder. It's speaking better. Miller discusses seven skills, ranging from controlling one's breath to how to listen to others."

Indianapolis Star, Indianapolis Star, 2006/03/22

"Dr. Miller's background as a voice trainer lends to chapters which survey the finer points of public speaking, with chapters covering how to clarify speech, enunciate clearly, and project the voice. Polish speaking skills and professional skills alike with BE HEARD THE FIRST TIME – which also works for the home. "

Midwest Book Review, Midwest Book Review, 2006/04

"Susan Miller, a voice coach, teaches speaking strategies that include breath and pitch control. The author of 'Be Heard the First Time: The Woman's Guide to Powerful Speaking,' says women often underestimate how important posture and presence are in delivering a message. Another tip: Be aware of your voice volume. You'll get the right level by comparing your volume to other speakers. Co-workers will tune you out if you “speak too softly and get annoyed if you speak too loudly. Either way, the message gets lost.”

Orange County (CA) Register, Orange County (CA) Register, 2006/05/21

“Women often precede statements with humbling remarks and sometimes speak so timidly that they’re not ‘noticed’ at conference meetings, Susan D. Miller writes in Be Heard the First Time. . . Miller shares these tips.” Triangle Magazine, 2006/07/01
